If you are having trouble connecting to AnonyTun at peak times, try another free VPN service like Hola to access blocked websites. The time-out problem The VPN servers are in high demand, hence the slow loading times. Pages will time-out pretty quickly because the VPN owners do not want users lingering if they are not using the page. The frequent time-outs may bother some people. No rooting or registration Many times, free VPN services ask you to register or root your device, but that is not the case with AnonyTun. They make their money from the many adverts they run on their app. There is a premium service that is advert-free, but it does not run anywhere close to the speeds that other paid VPN services do. Access websites that are blocked in your country. Surf blocked websites anonymously. No rooting or registration is required. Download from websites that you couldn't usually download from. Loading is slow during peak hours. Adverts are unskippable and sometimes hijack your previous tab. Eager time-outs can become annoying. The paid premium service is very underpowered and is quick to disconnect.
